New York, Oct. 14 .- The bank proved an enigma again today, as had come to be expected, owing to the large share in banking operations by institutions outside the clearing house, which do not report results to be included in the do not report results to be included in the bank statement. The stock market re-mained impassive on the appearance of the statement that fluctuations be, with the closing easy at small de-ble, with the closing easy at small decines.

The attendance at the stock exchange was small, owing to the large humber of absences at the automobile dup races. The bank statements showing of a decrease in loans of $29.456,660 makes a record, with the exception of reduction for the first week of September. Repayments of temporary borrowings by the city of New York with the proceeds of the yearly tax payments fisure in the showing. It is believed also that out of town institutions have made loans during the week in displacement of the New York bank loans. Loans by local trust comnanies are believed to have played a is repancy except as it hay represent a cetification of previous statements which has shown unexplained growth in the cash reserves. The foreign exchange market was unusually strong for a Saturday, and it was reported that so active demand for bills is due to buying to cover maturities of formed sterling loans. Other large maturities of this character still fall due during the coming week. Sterling exchange declined at Paris again and a small parcel of gold was withdrawn from the Bank of England for shipment to France. Sterling exchange reacted slightly at Berlin, but discounts advanced again at that center, at Paris and at London. The international pressure for gold is shown to be fully maintained by these several developments. Total sales of bonds, far value, $2,812,

Review of the Week.

Prices have moved irregularly through the week in a dull market and did not lose ground greatly at any time. Rates for money have moved upwards in all great centers of capital on account of encroachments upon reserves for purposes of circulation and coincident large demands for credits. Meanwhile, all reports bearing on the progress of commerce, industry and agriculture bear evidence of so high a degree of prosperity in this country that holders of securities continue extremely reluctant to part with their holdings in the confidence that the future promises higher values when temporary exigencies in the money market are once met. The conviction is general, however, that the satisfaction of these exigencies is not yet completed. This prospect has begot a conservative spirit in the making of present ventures in the stock and has been the motive for some public admonitions to caution from quarters that were of special authority with habitual operators in stocks. Advice of this tenor has been offered from many quarters for been the motive for some public admonitions to caution from quarters that were of special authority with habitual operators in stocks. Advice of this tenor has been offered from many quarters for some time past, but its force and effect were crystallized in the address of Vice President Vanderlip of the National City bank before the American Bankers' convention in Washington. Something like a chill of apprehension pervaded the financial district when it first became known that the vice prefident of the National City bank had said to his fellow bankers that "should a stock market speculation start from the present high level of prices in the face of the extraordinary demand for money and capital which crops and business alike are making, the result might easily be temporary disaster." The sentiment so exactly coincided with misgivings which had been growing in the minds of stock operators that the immediate effect was to throw the market into some disorder. Quieter conditions were restored when the optimistic tenor of the address as a whole was studied and when the National City bank appeared in the market as a large lender of call money and stocks regarded as favorable with that group of capitalists were seen to be supported. Naturally, however, speculative operations for an advance were greatly curtailed.

The course of the money market during the week has reinforced the coursel of capitalists were seen to be supported. Naturally, however, speculative extension. The Bank of England refrained from advancing its discourt rate, and it was reported that the Bank of France was parting with gold for Egypt to refleve the large drain on the Lordon money market. Foreign exchange in this market moved away from the gold import point in response to the higher money rates abroad. Rumors were circulated of an intended re-devosit in national banks of a portion of the government surplus, but these falled of official confirmation. Time money rates and interest on commercial credits moved upwards and there was one calling of lo Bonds have moved narrowly on a slight volume of business United States 24 declined 15, while the new 4s coupon advanced 15 and the new 4s registered 35 per cent on call, on the
